

Share, but be Aware

Personal information should be valued and protected.

- Teens love social media, and it can be a very useful tool to gain knowledge and converse with friends. Remind your teen to not accept follow requests from strangers or open requests from unknown senders.
- Have regular conversations with your teenager and remind them to never share their full name, address, phone number, social security number, or other personal information online.
- Be a role model. When talking with your teen or anyone, avoid picking up your phone. When eating a meal or spending time together, silence your phone.
