

College Strategy

As older teenagers leave high school for their next chapter, the facts remain: they often continue to harbor myths and misinformation about their reproductive health, putting themselves at risk for unintended pregnancies and STIs (sexually transmitted infections).

We Provide:

Customizable material and events working with each college or university to select the best topics and information to meet the needs of students. Some of these topics include:

- Reproductive Justice
- Gender Identity, Sexual Orientation, & LGBTQ+ Identities
- Anatomy, Menstruation, Contraception, & STIs/HIV
- Sexual behavior and Healthy Relationships
- Sexual Violence Prevention
- Debunking myths related to sex, sexuality, and sexual behavior
- Introduction to TMI-Georgia, our sexual health education app for older teens

GCAPP currently works with 6 colleges and universities across Georgia to provide both graduate and undergraduate students with inclusive, medically accurate, comprehensive reproductive and sexual health education information.

We currently work with:

- Georgia Southern University
- Wesleyan College
- Spelman College
- Georgia State University
- Kennesaw State University
- University of Georgia

This content can be disseminated via guest lectures, symposiums, pop-up events, peer educator trainings, and more!

For college students who are future teachers, we can provide skills trainings on how to facilitate medically accurate comprehensive sex education to K-12 classrooms.

FREE HIV self-testing kits and HIV prevention education/information to students at our events may also be an option if available.
